University of Rome III
Department of Philosophy communication and performing arts

Job title(s) Associate Professor, Department of philosophy, Dept. of Philosophy,

Career History

November 2014 – to present

Associate professor in Philosophy of science at Dept. of Philosophy, Communication, Performing arts, University of Rome III

Courses currently taught:

- Epistemology and the New Media (Undergraduate)
- Philosophy of technology (Postgraduate)
- History and Theory of computer science (Postgraduate)

November 2008 – October 2014

Lecturer in Philosophy of Science at the Dept. of Philosophy, University of Rome III.

Courses taught:

- Epistemology of New Media (Undergraduate)
- History of Logic and Computer Science (Postgraduate)
- Laboratory of Applied Computer Science for Publishing and Journalism (Postgraduate)
- Philosophical Problems of Logic (Ph.D. course)

January 2005 – October 2008

Lecturer in Philosophy of Science at the Dept. of Communication Sciences, University of Salerno (Italy)

Taught courses:

- Theory and Techniques of New Media (Undergraduate)
- Laboratory of Web Design (Undergraduate)

Education

March 1995 – June 1999

Ph.D. in History of Computer Science, University of Bari. Supervisors: Prof. Donald Gillies (King's College London) and Prof. Paolo Freguglia (University of Chieti). Title of thesis: The role of Alan Turing between the theory of computability and the "Electronic Brain" project.

The main objective of the thesis was the definition of Turing's ideas about machines and the tasks that they were supposed to accomplish in comparison with the other US and UK pioneers of computer science during the '40s and '50s.

February – June 1996

Graduate course in “Building relational database & SQL Programming” (350 H.) - IAL CISL Lazio

May – October 1994

European Master Degree in “Epistemology and Information Technology”, Université de Marne-la-Vallée & University of Bari.

April 1993

“Laurea” Degree in Philosophy (110/110 cum laude) - Dissertation in Logic – University “La Sapienza” of Rome, Supervisor Prof. Carlo Cellucci. Title of final Dissertation: “The birth of the Theory of Computability between the '30s and the '50s”.

The aim of the dissertation was the description of the theoretical basis behind the project of machine designing during the '40s. The theory of computability offered to the scientists that were involved in the machine building a theoretical structure for their practical aims.

Awards

June 2004 – April 2005

Leverhulme Fellowship awarded for an interdisciplinary research project on Computing and Philosophy under the supervision of Prof. Jonathan Bowen at the Faculty of BCIM at London South Bank University.

June 2001 – May 2003

University of Salerno Post PhD. Research Fellowship, Dept. Science of communication. Research project: The early history of computer and its epistemological impact on the mind-body problem.

October 1995

University of San Marino course Grant to attend a course in “Foundations of information technologies for the human sciences”, introduction to the SCHEME (LISP dialect) language. Centre for the Semiotic and Knowledge studies, University of San Marino.

May – October 1994

European Community Scholarship to attend the European Master course in “Epistemology and Information Technology” (see Education for details).
